Make That Two

Cycling does not have to be a solitary sport. My husband and I have logged more than 15,000 miles on our tandem, and I'd take the camaraderie of a bicycle-built-for-two over one of us huffing and puffing a block behind the other any day. We exercise our bodies and our relationship, and with a well-engineered child-trailer, it's easy to bring kids along.

Waterway trails, such as Cherry Creek, South Platte, and High Line Canal, are great for traffic-free riding. Our suggestion?
